Chain Purses Passing Away and

(New York Sun.) One of the most conspicuous accessories invariably carries it in her hand. As a result, womankind is judged not only by the inside of the pocket-book, but by the Fashions change in purses with remarkable rapidity. For a year purses of leather have been absent. To-day the chain purses, which put all others in the background, are passing, and leather is the material most in demand.

"The sales in leather purses and cardeases," said a salesman in a store with a reputation for fine leather goods, "are larger than they have been in years, and the articles are certainly more gorgeous than ever before. Women demanded them in rare shades to blend with novelties in rich costumes, and the dealers them in rare shades to blend with novelties in rich costumes, and the dealers have supplied the demand. The newest thing is a tiny purse, shaped exactly like a chatelaine bag. This is worn on a long chain, as was the tosgie purse. Two materials are used—leather and slik.
Those made of slik are exceedingly popular and effective, and we keep in stock the most fashionable shades of purple, green, and red. Card-cases mounted in plain silver, sliver glided, and pure gold are made of the same material, and are just as expensive as handsome leather card-cases. Of course, we make them to order to match the costume. Small sidebags are also made of slik. They are just large enough to hold a handkerchief and a tiny coin purse.

"The prices of leather coin purses and portemonnales vary according to their large enough to hold a handkerchief and a tiny coin purse.

"The prices of leather coin purses and portemonnaies vary according to their mounts, of course, but there is no reason why a woman with the most limited income should not carry 'a real seal marked down to 48 cents.' It is possible to buy a really handsome, well-made leather purse for $2, and from that they run up to $40. This little portemonnaie retails at the latter price. It is made of monkey skin, and handsomely mounted in solid gold, jewelled.

"Card-cases, which, by the way, are designed to carry cards, and only cards, are exceedingly rich in design and color this scason. The most popular are made of levant or crushed morocco. This material, treated in this way, obtains a dulfinish, which tones down those ultra shades so sought after. Look at this one of a rich, redsish violet color. Its corners are enamelled, the new antique finish being used. Most of the colored leather cases are embellished with enamel. Lizard, elephant, and snake skinshold their own well, and are mounted in sliver, gilded, and elaborately jewelled. They vary in priced from it to $30, which is the price of this one made of elephant skin. The corners are solid gold, set with genuine diamonds and emeralds. I wish women would learn that card-cases are made to carry cards. They stuff them full of samples, keys, money, handkerchiefs, and a few other things, and wonder why they break out at the sides. It is economy to own both a purse and a card-case, for then neither is taxed beyond its usefulness.

"One of the latest things out is a very small chatelaine-bag, made of pure white calf-skin, with a rough finish. It is mounted in silver, gilded with a bright finish, and is worn with a belt of the same material similarly mounted. The whole thing looks as if it might be made of white monkey-skin, and is exceedingly effective with dainty summer gowns. The price of the bag is $16, while the belt is only $5.75. The woman who clings to her chain-purse to-day is behind the time. Lenther is th
